Thank you for supporting Children’s Hunger Alliance and making 2019 yet another remarkable year. For almost half a century, our work has been focused on helping end childhood hunger in Ohio. As we celebrate our golden anniversary in 2020 we know we could not have reached this milestone without the support of our committed donors. We sincerely thank you for partnering with us. At Children’s Hunger Alliance, I’m fortunate to have a team of dedicated staff whose passion and commitment to the work of improving the lives of children is unprecedented.

Together, we’ve accomplished so much to be proud of this past year, including:

- Collaborating with over 1,300 community partners and schools to provide more than 9.5 million meals to children in Ohio.
- Assisting over 115 school districts to increase breakfast participation, including connecting 40 districts with funding from our national partner, No Kid Hungry, to support the implementation of Breakfast in the Classroom.
- Securing $2.35 million in the state biennial budget allowing us to not only sustain our current level of work, but also expand in some of our most impoverished areas of the state.
- Developing an innovative model for afterschool meals that allows us to reach children in areas of our state that lack food vendors.

As we celebrate our 50th anniversary, our strategic vision ensures that we are poised to grow and feed even more children in 2020. Although there are many initiatives we believe are important, our top priorities for 2020 include piloting food trucks for summer feeding, developing a model for feeding children on days their schools are on break, and general expansion with a focus on rural areas where the need is great and resources are limited.

Marion Wearly, our founder, started Children’s Hunger Alliance because she saw a need to feed hungry children in her neighborhood. As our work continues to grow throughout Ohio, the core mission to feed hungry children remains unchanged. We know that providing our children one of their most basic necessities – food – is critical to their development and will set them on the right path to becoming productive adults and helping break the cycle of poverty.

Again, thank you for your support and partnership in this important work!

With gratitude,

Judy Mobley

Children’s Hunger Alliance collaborates with numerous community partners through our sponsorship of the USDA Child and Adult Care Food Program and Summer Food Service Program.
On the opening day of the summer meal program at Livingston Elementary, Shanel, the site coordinator, met Ricco and his 1-year-old baby sister, Kakai. She’ll never forget the moment Ricco came in carrying his sister and continued holding her while he ate his breakfast.

Later the same day, still carrying Kakai, Ricco went to the gym to play some basketball. He was trying to hold his baby sister and shoot at the same time. Shanel had to plead with him to let her hold Kakai so he could spend some time just being a 13-year-old kid.

Shanel soon learned their single mother was going through a tough time and they were living with friends in the neighborhood close to the school. Ricco took on the responsibility of caring for his sister – playing with her, changing her diapers, and making sure she was fed.

After a few weeks of daily attendance, Shanel noticed Ricco was taking extra food from the share table. He confided in her that they had nothing to eat at home.

Shanel has worked at summer programs for many years and knows how the program improves the well-being of at-risk children. She said, “Open site programs that have no enrollment requirements and welcome any child to participate – regardless of their circumstances – give children living in low-income neighborhoods a better chance of survival. These sites provide them with food, keep them off the streets and give them structure with scheduled activities. The children come back day after day because they know it is a safe place and they look forward to receiving healthy meals and participating in the activities provided.”

Ricco and Kakai attended daily throughout the summer. On their last day, Ricco told Shanel, “I liked coming here because I knew we would get to eat breakfast and lunch every day. I also liked being able to play with the other kids without having to worry about my sister.” He had tears rolling down his face when he said goodbye. He was grateful not only for the food, but also for the chance to be a kid for a few hours each day.
Children's Hunger Alliance celebrated its 24th annual Menu of Hope luncheon with Nationwide as the presenting sponsor. ABC 6 News co-anchors, Stacia Naquin and Bob Kendrick returned to host the signature event for the third year.

Known for her best-selling memoir, keynote speaker Jeannette Walls left the audience feeling inspired and hopeful, recounting her unconventional childhood growing up in extreme poverty and her emergence from it.

The program of the year honorees were recognized for their notable work in providing healthy meals and snacks to children in their care.

The 2019 honorees were:
• Glenwood Community Center – Columbus Recreation and Parks; Afterschool Program of the Year, Columbus, Ohio
• Tracy Stainer, Owner of the Kid’s Garden; Daycare Center of the Year, Mt. Vernon, Ohio
• Patricia Keaton; In-Home Childcare Provider of the Year from Portsmouth, Ohio
• Logan-Hocking School District; School Breakfast Program of the Year, Logan, Ohio
• Hillsboro School District; Summer Nutrition Program of the Year, Hillsboro, Ohio

The 17th Annual Taste to Remember event, presented by the Kroger Co., helped raise funds to support Children’s Hunger Alliance’s open summer meal sites. Glenwood Park Recreation Center, represented by Francine Grace, was recognized for their commitment to feeding children in their program. Children’s Hunger Alliance is grateful to the Kroger Co., corporate and individual sponsors, and the participating food and drink establishments for helping make this event a success.

A special thank you to Brooke Wagner, Past Chair of the Governing Board, for her help in organizing a special VIP event.

Congratulations to the Pit BBQ Grille for winning this year’s Golden Spoon Award.

The 2nd Annual Eat Like A Kid Again event with Starbucks as the presenting sponsor helped raise money to feed children in Northeast Ohio. Lindsay Buckingham of WKYC 3 served as the emcee and Bridgette Smith-Jackson, Rainbow Terrace Learning Center’s Director of Social Services, spoke to the crowd on the importance of the partnership with CHA to help feed children in their program. Children’s Hunger Alliance is grateful to Starbucks, corporate and individual sponsors, and the participating food and drink establishments for their support. Congratulations to Cleveland Whiskey for winning the Golden Spoon Award in the Best of Taste competition.
Nationwide and the Nationwide Foundation have been longstanding supporters of Children’s Hunger Alliance contributing over half a million dollars to help feed food-insecure children in Ohio. We asked Susan Gueli, SVP and CIO of Program and Application Services and chair of the Governing Board, and Kirt Walker, the CEO, to share their thoughts on the philanthropic culture at Nationwide and the continued support of Children’s Hunger Alliance’s work.

In 1926, Nationwide began as a small insurer helping farmers get the best value for car insurance. While they have grown to become one of America’s most diversified financial services organizations, they continue to uphold their fundamental values of being good corporate citizens and helping create strong communities.

Kirt explained, “At Nationwide our mission is to protect people, businesses, and futures with extraordinary care. That extends to our communities as well. Through gifts of time, talent and treasure we feel a responsibility to make all of our communities even better. This includes support for philanthropic investments, associate volunteerism, and workplace giving programs that transform lives and make a difference in communities across the nation.”

According to Susan, in addition to the dedication of their associates, what sets Nationwide apart from other companies is their deep connections with charity partners and the impact they’ve made through hundreds of local nonprofits in communities that “Nationwiders” call home.

Since 2000, the Nationwide Foundation has contributed almost $500 million to nonprofit organizations across the country including charities – like Feeding America and Children’s Hunger Alliance to name a few – focused on addressing food insecurity.

Susan said, “For more than 25 years, we’ve supported Children’s Hunger Alliance because we recognize the importance food security and overall nutrition has on a child’s well-being, learning, and development. Through its network of meal programs and expertise in leveraging buying power and agency funding, we know our investment in Children’s Hunger Alliance is making a far-reaching impact on underserved children across the state.”

Having a passion for helping children gain a solid start in life, Susan found herself drawn to organizations that have missions supporting the welfare of children. She became involved with Children’s Hunger Alliance seven years ago serving on the Governing Board.

Susan recalls a story that had an impact on her when she visited a school breakfast partner, “When schools are closed because of a snow day, I think about the kids who depend on school meals. Unlike most other kids, their enthusiasm for a surprise day off is dampened because their first thought goes to - how am I going to eat today?”

Emergency snow days aside, Susan is excited about the organization’s new initiative to provide children ready-to-eat meals to take home during time off for holidays and spring break. Susan said, “I’m proud of the work we already do over the summer, and this new initiative will continue the effort to feed children who lose access to school meals during other break periods.”
Thank you to EclipseCorp for all your help feeding children in need!

When you walk into the EclipseCorp lobby in Gahanna, it’s hard to imagine that the brand implementation company started as a modest photography studio in Jeff and Sandra Burt’s garage. It was 1994, a year after they moved to Columbus from the Bay Area. Within a few months, the Burts took out a $25,000 loan against their house and rented a small studio. It was a big gamble for the young couple.

Jeff recounted the pivotal year the business took off in 1997 when they began to offer grand format printing. While the added service brought in new clients, it also created new challenges. “We had to knock down walls and took over an adjacent space, knock down more walls and took over another space, and eventually we had to move to a larger building,” Jeff said.

The gamble paid off for the Burts. In 2008, EclipseCorp moved to its third and current location in Gahanna, occupying 52,000 square feet of production space and a studio. EclipseCorp’s mission today is to ignite brands in every dimension, most recently adding 3D printing.

Last year, the company invested in a grand format 3D printer, a move they anticipate will play an integral role in substantially increasing revenues within the next three years. “We’ve come a long way,” Jeff said. “As one of a handful of companies with the capability to do attention-grabbing grand format 3D applications, we make some crazy big things like Rock’em Sock’em robots that are seven feet tall. Not only are we seeing the size of the company grow, but also the work we’re doing.”

EclipseCorp likes to do things in a big way, including when it comes to philanthropy. They support many organizations including Children’s Hunger Alliance (CHA), Easter Seals and Race for the Cure to name a few. Jeff has been heavily involved with CHA for over 20 years and currently is a member of the governing board.

Throughout the years, EclipseCorp has provided numerous in-kind donations from supporting Menu of Hope to helping rebrand the Lunch Money Challenge – which has raised thousands of dollars to support CHA’s work since it was relaunched in 2019.

“How could you not want to help children?” Jeff asked. “They’re the future and any child who goes hungry is a miss. Children’s Hunger Alliance’s work is critical for children living with hunger. It’s just a good cause and we’d be crazy not to help out.”

“It makes us feel good because we’re making a difference,” Jeff said. “We want our partners to succeed, because if they’re not growing then we didn’t do our job 100 percent.”

Since 1970, CHA has been helping improve access to meals for children living in food-insecure homes. Today, over 500,000 children in Ohio are struggling with hunger, a statistic that motivates the Burts to continue supporting CHA’s mission.

“Talking about Ohio’s childhood food-insecurity issue isn’t going to solve the problem. Ask what you can do to be a part of the solution. And if you’re not part of the solution, then technically you might be a part of the problem,” Sandra said.

CHA is grateful to the Burts and EclipseCorp for their continued support over the last 20 years helping improve the lives of our children. Their generous gifts of technical expertise and financial contributions have been invaluable to CHA’s success.

For nearly 20 years, Children’s Hunger Alliance has been inspiring companies and individuals to participate in the Lunch Money Challenge. The year-round fundraising endeavor is designed to provide an opportunity for individuals to “donate” their lunch money to help provide meals to feed hungry children.

The 2019 reboot of this fundraising strategy has a new logo—a retro-styled bright red lunch box—and a new website providing information about the statewide issue of childhood hunger with instructions on how to sign-up for the challenge. Together, we can make a difference in fighting childhood hunger in Ohio.

Children’s Hunger Alliance is grateful to the many organizations and individuals who took the challenge in 2019!
